- 4 September George Jones Derbyshire Wildlife Trust. Derwent Living Forest & The Wild Peak
A pioneering project aiming to improve woodland habitat connectivity and reduce flood risk in the Derbyshire Derwent catchment. Derwent Living Forest will kick-start the creation of a new landscape centred around the River Derwent catchment. The project will work to establish a connection between the new woodlands of the National Forest in the South & the soon-to-be established woodlands of the Northern Forest to the North.
- 2 October Linda Lamon Walking in May's Wood. After completing a ten year photographic project with a new, native woodland owned by Sir Brian May, Linda Lamon talks about its beginnings and her journey capturing the rich biodiversity with pictures of different species of trees, insects and wildflowers within the 157 acre developing forest. Linda is also a musician and songwriter and presents the images with her own original music. There will be an opportunity for the audience to also view some printed pictures in 3D during the evening.
- 6 November Chris Harrop Tyers Hall: A mixed Yorkshire Farm's Agri-Environmental Journey. Tyers Hall Farm is a mixed arable and livestock farm on the e Eastern side of Barnsley in South Yorkshire. As well as growing crops and grazing animals, he does lots of nature conservation work. From his woodland and extensive network of hedgerows, to field margins and other ground habitats, he aim to provide wildlife corridors allowing different species to move across the farm. Farms are a dynamic landscape, with various activities throughout the seasons, from tractor work to grazing animals, hedge laying and tree planting or felling.
- 4 December Christmas Party & Member's Talk Christmas Party with a Quiz and Derek Clifford will tell us about the Brabyns Park Biodiversity Survey

Winter-Summer 2025

8 January Dr Hugh Jones

Land Flatworms: natives & aliens, the latest news of invaders!

Dr Jones is a Scientific Associate at the Natural History Museum, London specialising in land flatworms. Most newly recognised species are introduced species, from Australia or New Zealand, but some are from Asia & Brazil. Some are considered invasive since they harm native fauna.

5 February Jane Michael

Land of the Midnight Sun: A Journey through The Arctic. Jane's talk will follow the journey that she and Don took through the Arctic from the Svalbard Archipelago via Jan Mayen Island to Greenland's east coast and on to Iceland. It will include the flora and fauna that they saw during this fascinating trip, some of it iconic such as the polar bear but also some of it very unexpected. The cruise had a strong scientific bias but the history and culture of the areas they visited were important too. It wasn't all hard work, there was lots of time for fun. So come along to find out more about this rapidly changing area.

5 March AGM & Member's talk

AGM followed by Group Member Eric Stead who will give us a talk on FLORIDA, a state with a multitude of nature reserves. His trip around the beautiful, swampy state of Florida looking at its varied wildlife and habitats

2 April Louise Bentley of Bury & Bolton Swifts

Summer Wings – Saving Swifts, Swallows & Martins. These iconic birds have lived alongside us for centuries as close companions. But how well do we know these summer visitors? Discover more about these magical migrants, as slowly they reveal their secrets to us. Find out why it's not all bad news & how conservation measures can make a difference to our Swifts & Hirundines. This is an upbeat, highly informative, illustrated & interactive presentation.

7 May Ron Blackburn

Travels with my Camera - A Lifetime of Wildlife Photography.

A photographer from the age of 15, Ron took every opportunity to continue photographing wildlife during his 22 years in the Armed Forces. Closer to home, since then, he has been a wildlife photographer for the last 15 years and has an extensive collection of images and video footage. His images have featured in a publication of the World Owl Trust. He has many stories to tell and he speaks with knowledge & passion.

4 June To be confirmed

July - August

Summer walks. These popular walks are still to be arranged.
